COMS W4111: Introduction to Databases Section 002, Fall 2021

Homework 3A

Chandan Suri - CS4090

1 Overview

- To smooth the time students spend on homework per week, we split each of HW 3 and HW 4 into two parts: A, B.

- HW 3A is worth 8 points out of the semesters 100 total possible points.

- HW 3A is common to both the programming and non-programming tracks. HW 3A requires importing and transforming data for MySQL, MongoDB and Neo4j databases. Subsequent HW projects will use the processed data.

HW 3A Concept

- HW 3A has two sources of raw data input files:

  - CSV data downloaded from IMDB.
  - JSON data files from Jeffrey Lancaster's Game-of-Thrones visualization project.

- We have downloaded, simplified and reduced the size and complexity of some of the data to make the assignment easier and to require less powerful computing resources.

- In HW 3A, you will process the raw data to produce well-design data models and data in MySQL, Neo4j and MongoDB. The final data model:

  - Contains core information in MySQL.
  - Document and hierarchical information in MongoDB.
  - Graph data describing relationships between characters and actors in IMDB.

- The HW 3A submission format is a copy of this notebook with each of the tasks completed. Completing a specific task involves:
  - Creating a "to be" schema.
  - Populating with data by extract-transform-load of the raw data.
  - Providing the queries and code you use to perform the schema creation and transformation.
  - Providing test queries that show the structure of the resulting data and schema.

This homework will be due Monday, November 22, 2021 at midnight.

2 Environment Setup

2.1 Installation

- You must install and set up.
  - Neo4j Desktop: This includes configuring and using the sample movie graph to test your configuration: `:play movie graph`. (https://neo4j.com/developer/neo4j-browser/)
  - MongoDB Community Edition
  - MongoDB Compass
- Create two new MySQL schema/databases: `HW3_IMDBRaw` and `HW3_IMDBFixed.`

2.2 Test Setup

2.2.1 Neo4j

- Using Neo4j, create a new project `HW3` and create a graph in the project. Remember the DB password you choose.

- Start and connect to the graph using the Neo4j browser (launch-able from `Open` on the desktop after you create the graph).

- Enter `:play movie graph` in the Cypher command area in the UI and follow the tutorial instructions.
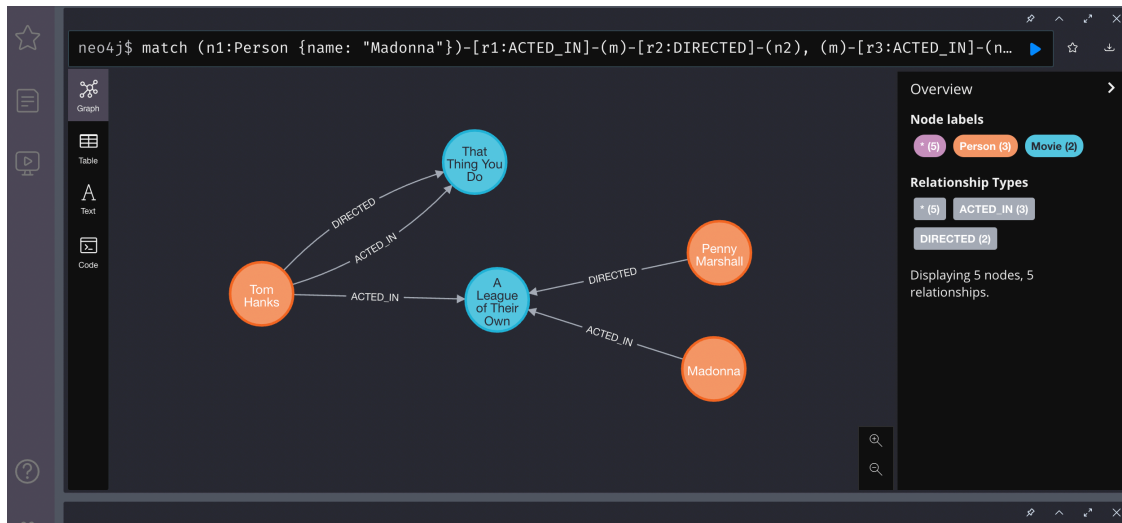

- After completion, run the query

`match (n1:Person {name: "Madonna"})-[r1:ACTED_IN]-(m)-[r2:DIRECTED]-(n2), (m)-[r3:ACTED_IN]-(n`

- Capture the result, save to a file and embed the file below. You answer should be:

Neo4j Setup Test

[1]:  # Solution for the Query run above:
      from IPython.display import Image
      Image(filename = 'Neo4j_Sample_Query_Run.png')
[1]:
```

- Install the Neo4j python client library py2neo (Note: Your output might be different).

[1]: !pip3 install py2neo
```

```python

         c_data = json.load(in_file)
     c_data = c_data['characters']
```

```python

3 Task I: Essential Game of Thrones Character and Actor Information

3.1 Task I-a: Load Raw Information

- Character documents in the collection `GOT_Characters` have several fields.
- The first task is to get the essential fields and then load info a core MySQL table.
- The core fields are:
  - actorLink
  - actorName
  - characterName
  - characterLink
  - characterImageFull
  - characterImageThumb
  - houseName
  - kingsguard
  - nickname
  - royal
- This requires a simple `find` call to MongoDB.
- Question: Put your code here.

[120]: projection_params = {
           "actorLink": 1,
```

    "actorName": 1,
    "characterName": 1,
    "characterLink": 1,
    "characterImageFull": 1,
    "characterImageThumb": 1,
    "houseName": 1,
    "kingsguard": 1,
    "nickname": 1,
    "royal": 1
}

result = client.HW3.GOT_Characters.find(projection = projection_params)
```

- Execute the following test.

[121]:
```python result = list(result) for r in result:
    r["id"] = str(r["_id"])
    del r["_id"]
result[10]

[121]:
```
{'characterName': 'Archmaester Marwyn',
 'characterLink': '/character/ch0578265/',
 'actorName': 'Jim Broadbent', 'actorLink': '/name/nm0000980/',
 'id': '619c3cfd51dd76fabdb47a33'}
```

- Question: Create a table in `HW3_IMDBRaw` to hold the `characters` information. Show you create table statement, your code for loading the table and a test query below. You may use the `%sql` extension. You may also use `pandas`.

[24]:
%load_ext sql

[26]:
```
%sql mysql+pymysql://root:dbuserdbuser@localhost/HW3_GOT_Raw
```

Creation of Table

We will not be taking the "houseName" column in here as there can be multiple values for that column and it's not good to have a multivalued attribute in such a way.

[27]:
```sql
%%sql
DROP TABLE IF EXISTS characters; CREATE TABLE characters
    id VARCHAR(256) PRIMARY KEY NOT NULL, characterName VARCHAR(128) NULL, characterLink VARCHAR(128) NULL, actorName VARCHAR(256) NULL, actorLink VARCHAR(256) NULL,
```

        characterImageFull VARCHAR(256) NULL, characterImageThumb VARCHAR(256) NULL, royal TINYINT(1) NULL, kingsguard TINYINT(1) NULL, nickname VARCHAR(128) NULL, houseName VARCHAR(256) NULL
);
```

 * mysql+pymysql://root:@localhost/HW3_GOT_Raw 0 rows affected.
0 rows affected.

[27]: []

Loading the Table

[28]: ```python
import pymysql connection = pymysql.connect(host = 'localhost', user = 'root', password = ↪'dbuserdbuser', db = 'HW3_GOT_Raw') cursor = connection.cursor()
```

[29]: ```python
rows_added_count = 0

for character_document in result:
    keys_str_ls = []
    values_str_ls = []

    # Getting all values for all the keys for each of the characters
    for key, value in character_document.items():
        if value is True:
            values_str_ls.append("\"1\"")
        elif value is False:
            values_str_ls.append("\"0\"")
        else:
            values_str_ls.append(f"\"{str(value)}\"") keys_str_ls.append(key) character_document_keys = ', '.join(keys_str_ls) character_document_vals = ', '.join(values_str_ls)

    # Adding data to the table
    try:
        insert_query = f"INSERT INTO characters ({character_document_keys}) ↪VALUES({character_document_vals})" cursor.execute(insert_query)
        rows_added_count += 1
        print(f"Record successully added with keys: {character_document_keys}

    except:
        print(f"Record could not be entered: Keys: {character_document_keys},␣ ↪Values: {character_document_vals} !")

print(f"{rows_added_count} Rows successully added out of {len(result)} total␣

3.2   Task I-b: Improve Schema

- There are several problems with the raw characters and actors information. Some obvious examples are:
  - There are two entity types in one table: `characters` and `actors`.
  - The columns are not typed.
  - There are no keys or constraints.
  - Repeating prefixes like `/name/` is a poor design.
- Create a schema `HW3_GOT_Fixed` that has an improved schema and data model. Show your create and alter table, and data loading statements below. Also, run a query against your tables to show the data.

4 Task II: Relationships

4.1 Task II-a: Getting Relationship Data

- The MongoDB collection for `characters` has fields representing one-to-many relationships between characters.

- The fields are in the list below.

[39]:  relationship_names = [
            'abducted',
        'abductedBy',
        'allies',
        'guardedBy',
        'guardianOf',
        'killed',
        'killedBy',
        'marriedEngaged',
        'parentOf',
        'parents',
        'servedBy',
        'serves',
        'sibling',
        'siblings'
        ]
```

- The Task II-a objective is to produce a table `HW3_GOT_Raw.character_relationships` of the form:

`character_relationships(sourceCharacterName, relationship, targetCharacterName)`

- Producing this information requires some pretty tricky MongoDB aggregate pipeline development. The critical hint is to realize that:
  - You can write a function that implements a generic pipeline to produce the information given a specific relationship name.
  - Write a python function that saves the information produced by the function in the SQL table.
  - Write a python loop that calls the function to produce the information for each of the relationships in the list above and saves/appends the information to the relationship table.

[46]:  %sql mysql+pymysql://root:dbuserdbuser@localhost/HW3_GOT_Raw
```

Table Creation

[47]:  %%sql
        CREATE TABLE IF NOT EXISTS character_relationships
```

```
    sourceCharacterName VARCHAR(128) NOT NULL, relationship VARCHAR(64) NOT NULL, targetCharacterName VARCHAR(128) NOT NULL
);
```

   mysql+pymysql://root:@localhost/HW3_GOT_Fixed
 * mysql+pymysql://root:@localhost/HW3_GOT_Raw 0 rows affected.

4.2 Task II-b: Load Neo4j

- At this point, you should have the following tables in `HW3_GOT_Fixed`:
  - `characters`
  - `character_relationships`
- You will now load this information into Neo4j. The following code shows you some simple steps to create nodes and relationships.

[225]:
n = Node("Fan", uni='dff9', name='Donald Ferguson')
graph.create(n)

[231]:
q = """ match (n1:Fan {uni: 'dff9'}), (n2:Person {name: $name})
          create (n1)-[:FANOF]->(n2)
graph.run(q, name='Tom Hanks')

[231]: (No data)

- Now we can do a verification test ... ...

Result of Create

- So, your task is the following:
  - Create a `Node` for each character.
  - Create a relationship connecting characters based on their relationships.
- Show you code to create and some verification tests below.

[93]: %sql mysql+pymysql://root:dbuserdbuser@localhost/HW3_GOT_Raw
